

ABSTRACT

A device for preventing damage to a wire. The device includes a first curved end for connecting the device to a supporting structure. The device also contains a second curved end for supporting at least one skein of the wire on the device.